LACK OF CHARITY

UNDOING OF CROOK

A one-time noted safe blower "goes straight" after serving his only term in prison, and investing half his money in war loans, buys a farm and, marrying, tries to live down the past. In two years, by his acts of charity and his straightforward living, he has endeared himself to the community. Then the detective who had sent him up, but who admires him, calls at his home and inadvertently tells his wife of his past life. She turns on him and tells the villagers the secret. In a day he is a man jeered and spurned.

Heartbroken, but angered at their lack of charity, he takes out his burglar's tools, determined to show them his contempt by blowing the bank safe and burning up their savings. But the detective, regretting his action and fearing such a consequence, gets Belle Foliot, a former pal of the crook, whom he has really loved all the time and who, too, has reformed, and they hurry to the village to save him. But his home is in darkness and the tools are gone.

What eventually happens to Jern Olsen and how he proves he is, after all "all man," is dramatically told in "All Man," the Vitagraph Blue Ribbon feature which will be seen in the Oak theatre again tonight. Harry Moroy is Olsen and Betty Blythe is Belle. Others in the cast are Bob Gallard, George Majeroni, Carlton King and Bernard Siegel.

GOOD FOR BILIOUSNESS

"Two years ago I suffered from frequent attacks of stomach trouble and biliousness. Seeing Chamberlain's Tablets advertised I concluded to try them. I improved rapidly."

KEEP ZINC AWAY

FROM PRESERVES

Do not use galvanized utensils in making preserves, jellies or fruit juices, the Bureau of Chemistry of the United States Department of Agriculture advises. Some of the zinc with which the vessels are galvanized may be changed to salts of zinc, which will give the product an acrid and astringent taste and render it unsuitable for human use. Moreover, the dissolving of this zinc coating tends to ruin the container. The use of galvanized utensils for boiling down fruit juices is especially risky.

"PLAYTHINGS"

An announcement that contains more of interest for local playgoers than they can possibly realize unless they are familiar with the discussion that the play has aroused everywhere else it has been produced, is to the effect that "Playthings," a drama in three acts by Sidney Toler, is to be given here at the Lyric by the Rotation Stock company this evening.

In spite of its title, which might well suggest a play of childhood, Mr. Toler's drama embodies some of the most sensational situations and climaxes that have been seen on the stage in many a day. It is a play for grown-ups who are not afraid to look life as it is, not as it ought to be, in the face, powerful and fearless in its indictment of a certain class of society, who, as one of them cries in the bitterness of her regret are the "playthings of men."

The play tells of the human struggles of one of these human playthings, who, betrayed and cast aside, strives to regain a place in society, only to be met, when she has well-nigh attained her goal, with the sinister influences of him who is responsible for her darkened past.

It is here that there is one of the most powerful emotional scenes that the stage has been given in years, and it is followed by an unexpected and soul-stirring climax, which, it may truly be said, totally eclipses any play "surprise" feature in recent theatrical history.

Truly, dealing as it does with startling frankness and vigor with the everlasting problems that confront society, "Playthings" is bound to raise such discussion here as has not been accorded any other drama in a decade.

CANDLING IMPROVES EGGS

Federal food inspectors of the Bureau of Chemistry, in keeping a close watch on interstate shipments of eggs, have found a marked improvement in the quality of this season's market eggs, according to the officials in charge of the enforcement of the food and drugs act. The finding of fewer bad eggs in the market is attributed by the food officials to the educational campaign, carried on jointly by the Food Administration and the Department of Agriculture, to induce dealers and shippers to candle the eggs as near the source of production as possible.

FOR A WEAK STOMACH
Chamberlain's Tablets is a multitude of cases has fully proven the great value of this preparation for a weak stomach and impaired digestion. In many cases this relief has become permanent and the sufferers have been completely restored to health.

SAVE OLD PAPERS AND MAGAZINES

Owing to the high cost of paper many people have asked why the scrap heap and old magazines and newspapers could not be conserved in some way.

The Cache County Chapter is pleased to announce that the Independent Paper Stock company with a branch house at Salt Lake City will pay about $10 per ton for first class magazines and about $6 per ton for second class magazines and newspapers, etc., f. o. b. Logan. Mr. Irwin C. Fox, manager of the company, met with the Executive committee of the Chapter Tuesday evening and explained the necessity of conserving waste paper and asked the Chapter through its Junior Red Cross to take charge of the movement and conduct a campaign in this county. Mr. Fox stated that for every ten pounds of paper wasted or burned, that seven pounds of wood for the forests had to be used to replace the ten pounds of paper.

Miss Edith Bowen has been elected as chairman of the Junior Red Cross with Mr. George D. Harding and Miss Clara Kramer as assistants. As soon as the organization is completed in the schools, the salvage movement will be taken up and the gathering of all magazines, newspapers and all forms of waste paper will be part of the work. Watch for later announcements and in the meantime, don't destroy any magazines but store them away until they are called for by the Junior Red Cross.

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG IN "THE CLAW"

"To every man once in his life comes a decision between supreme right and intolerable wrong." This sentence is from Cynthia Stockley's famous novel, "The Claw," which has been pictured by Charles E. Whittaker, and will be the feature attraction on Friday and Saturday at the Lyric theatre. It is the latest Select Picture made by Clara Kimball Young and her own company.

The sentence describes an absorbingly interesting and dramatic situation that confronts Maurice Stair, the young English resident commissioner at the outlying post where Mary Saurin (Clara Kimball Young) comes to visit her brother. Stair falls in love with Mary; she, however, has no eyes for any one except Major Anthony Kinsella, familiarly called "Kim," the leader of the garrison forces.

When the natives rebel and the Englishman ride out to suppress the uprising, Stair returns and reports that the rest of the expedition has been utterly wiped out, and that it was Kim's dying request that his fiancée marry Stair. This she does only to learn later that her husband is a coward and a deceiver. Stair's time for the great decision comes when they hear of Kim's being held captive by a band of Kaffirs in the neighborhood and despite the fact that Mary has decided to leave him Stair's innate manliness is brought out by the chance to save a fellow-Englishman. He pulls himself together and does the courageous thing, although the price he pays for his redemption is his life.

Junction, Altonite, Marysville, etc., stop overnight at Richfield.
Thursday, Sept. 19.—Leave Richfield, arrive Salt Lake for night.
